One of Nature's Revenges, I remember seeing Fred Archer when yards of his outwitted companion. The cruelest of all ills when one is young, and extra weight when he won the Derby on this account. That strained, woebegone expression and a showy checkerboard uister that accompanied it have always been associated with the great English horse races ever since. Very likely he consoled himself, let us hope he did, at least, and the outrages of prolonged starration, constant Turkish baths and riding in the teeth of a cold wind clad only in a silk shirt and thin breeches were the legitimate causes of his death. Nevertheless, though man flouts at nature, she can be kind in being cruel. She allowed Archer to slip out of the world.—Boston

These Paints are in every respect strictly first class, being composed of the best and purest materials obtainable. They have a larger sale than any other paints made in this country or abroad, and, although they cost a trifle more per gallon than any others, they will do more and better work for the same amount of money, owing to their wonderful covering properties, while their superior darability renders them the most economical paints in the world.
